Proponent's Argument

VOTE YES ON H FOR STRONGER MUNI.

MUNI IS A LIFELINE FOR WORKERS, SENIORS, STUDENTS

"Muni is essential for our seniors, many of whom don't drive, and need Muni to get groceries, go to appointments and move independently." – Anni Chung, Self-Help for the Elderly

"Working people depend on affordable, reliable, and safe Muni every day—to get to work, take their kids to school, and keep San Francisco moving." - Olga Miranda, President, SEIU Local 87

MUNI POWERS OUR ECONOMY.

"40% of San Franciscans who work downtown take Muni. Public transit is one of the smartest investments we can make in our local economy. Without H, Muni service will be severely reduced, killing the engine of our economic recovery and causing future cuts to emergency response, parks, and other city services." – former Controller Ben Rosenfield

MORE ACCOUNTABLE MUNI. Muni eliminated 500 vacant positions, trimmed management and doubled fare inspectors. Muni customer satisfaction recently hit a 25 year high due to safer and more reliable service.

MUNI FACES DEEP SERVICE CUTS. For years, one-time federal and state Covid relief kept Muni running. That money is gone. Despite strong actions to save $137 million dollars annually, without Prop H, service could be cut by 30%, at least 20 bus routes eliminated, and far worse traffic in our neighborhoods.

H ONLY FUNDS MUNI SERVICE. "Strong oversight and independent audits ensures every dollar goes to safe, reliable and affordable Muni service that can never be redirected." – Mayor Daniel Lurie

San Franciscans from every corner of the city have united to vote Yes on H. The Labor Council and Chamber of Commerce. The San Francisco Apartment Association and Tenants Union. Small business owners and transit advocates. Mayor Lurie and the entire Board of Supervisors.

Mayor Daniel Lurie
Speaker Emerita Nancy Pelosi
San Francisco Democratic Party
Senator Scott Wiener
Assemblymember Catherine Stefani
Assemblymember Matt Haney
Supervisors:
Rafael Mandelman
Connie Chan
Steven Sherrill
Danny Sauter
Alan Wong
Bilal Mahmood
Matt Dorsey
Myrna Melgar
Jackie Fielder
Shamann Walton
Chyanne Chen
Former Controller Ben Rosenfield
SF Tenants Union
SF Labor Council
SF Chamber of Commerce
SF Council of District Merchants
Firefighters Local 798
Transit Workers Union 250A
Teamsters Local 665
Chinatown Transportation Research and Improvement Project

Rebuttal to Proponent's Argument

Everyone wants safe, reliable Muni. The question is whether a 15-year tax with no strings attached will deliver it.

The Yes campaign warns of devastating service cuts if Prop H fails. But that dodges the real question: Why guarantee SFMTA a new tax revenue stream without requiring it to meet a single efficiency or performance target?

Supporters boast that Muni has eliminated vacant positions, trimmed management and found $137 million in annual savings. Great. That proves reform is possible. Prop H should require more reform, not guarantee new revenue regardless of results.

They also promise "strong oversight and independent audits." But oversight is not accountability. Prop H requires an efficiency review, but does not require SFMTA to implement its recommendations. There are no binding efficiency targets, performance benchmarks, or requirements that future tax dollars depend on results.

And who pays? Prop H taxes property based on square footage, not value. A modest home can owe nearly the same tax as a far more valuable home of similar size. Renters aren't spared, either, since landlords can pass through part of the tax.

Muni is too important to keep funding the same way and hoping for different results.

Before approving a 15-year tax, voters must demand binding reforms, measurable performance standards, and real accountability.

Vote NO on Prop H.

The San Francisco Republican Party

Arguments are the opinions of the authors and have not been checked for accuracy by any official agency.
Arguments are printed as submitted. Spelling and grammatical errors have not been corrected.

Opponent's Argument

San Franciscans are being asked to fund Muni's $300 million deficit for 15 years with no strings attached.

False threats. Nobody wants longer wait times or service cuts, but a new tax isn't the only option. Nothing in this proposition requires SFMTA to cut costs, hit efficiency targets, or act on a spending review as a condition of receiving this money.

No sunset tied to results. The tax runs through 2042 regardless of whether ridership, fares, or costs ever normalize.

A toothless review, collected after the money's already in hand. The measure calls for an "efficiency review," but not until April 2028, nine months after the tax kicks in. Even then, the review only has to report its findings to SFMTA's own board. Nothing requires the agency to act on a single recommendation, and nothing ties future funding to whether it does.

A flat tax, not a fair one. The tax is based on square footage, not property value. A modest home and a far more valuable one of similar size nearby will pay nearly the same amount. Renters aren't spared either, since landlords can pass through the tax increase to tenants.

A 15-year tax with no results-based sunset, no binding reforms, and no independent check on whether the money is spent well isn't the accountability that SFMTA needs. It's a blank check.

Vote No on H.

The San Francisco Republican Party

Rebuttal to Opponent's Argument

Trump's Federal spending cuts have devastated transportation systems across the country. Given these cuts and the loss of other funding, Muni faces 30% service cuts and the elimination of at least 20 bus routes. That's just a fact.

Mayor Lurie has taken bold action to make Muni more efficient BEFORE ever proposing H for the ballot. With new leadership, the agency eliminated 500 vacant positions, cut management, and froze non-operator hiring, saving $140 million. Muni doubled fare inspectors and reduced fare evasion by 30%. Wait times and reliability have improved, and Muni's favorability is at an all time high.

The tax isn't flat. The San Francisco Republican Party is wrong. H is the first fair, tiered parcel tax in San Francisco history. 95% of homeowners pay the lowest amount. Large commercial buildings and mansions pay the most. 70% of the revenue comes from the city's largest properties. Rent-controlled units are protected and won't pay more than $65 a year.

Strong oversight. H requires independent audits and mandates citizen oversight for the life of the tax. And not one penny can be spent on anything other than Muni operations.

World-class public transportation requires investment. "Investing in Muni is just smart economics. The economic activity Muni generates funds emergency response, parks, and libraries." - Former Controller Ben Rosenfield.

We owe it to the next generation of San Franciscans to make sure that Muni remains the system we all love.

Vote Yes on H.

Mayor Daniel Lurie
Rodney Fong, SF Chamber of Commerce
Tony Delorio, Teamsters Local 665
Kat Siegal, Transit Advocate

Arguments are the opinions of the authors and have not been checked for accuracy by any official agency.
Arguments are printed as submitted. Spelling and grammatical errors have not been corrected.