ARGUMENT AGAINST MEASURE U

VOTE NO ON MEASURE U.

Measure U asks Dixon voters to approve another $49 million bond, repeating many of the same promises made under Measure Q in 2016. While the District did complete major projects, including building the new high school and performing renovations at other campuses - the pattern is clear: facilities are not being properly maintained. Instead of routine upkeep, the District repeatedly returns to voters with large bond measures to fix problems that should never have been allowed to deteriorate this far.

Measure U claims it will “fix deteriorating roofs, plumbing, gas, electrical systems, remove asbestos/lead pipes, and upgrade aging classrooms and labs.” These are not new issues. They are long-standing maintenance responsibilities. When a district fails to maintain what taxpayers already paid to build or repair, it eventually manufactures another “urgent need” and asks for another bond. Measure U continues this cycle.

Finally, Measure U promises “citizen oversight” and “independent audits.” Yet the Measure Q oversight committee - which is supposed to ensure transparency - has not done its job. No oversight and no annual reports as required by law. Can we really trust them?

If the District cannot maintain basic oversight for Measure Q, voters have no reason to trust that Measure U will be any different.

Dixon deserves responsible maintenance, honest communication, and real oversight - not another bond built on neglected facilities and misleading tax language.
