REBUTTAL TO ARGUMENT AGAINST MEASURE P

Opponents are correct that Measure P is a general measure. However, they do not mention the safeguards, exemptions, and accountability voters deserve to know.

Measure P does NOT add tax to every purchase. Sales tax does NOT apply to groceries or prescription medications, and Measure P is not a property tax.

Fairfield is transparent about how Measure P funds are managed. Spending is reviewed through the public budget process, annual independent audits, public financial reports, and the Measure P Oversight Committee. Taxpayers can view Measure P audit reports at www.fairfield.ca.gov/measurep.

Most importantly, opponents do not say what should be cut if local revenues cannot keep pace with rising costs. Police patrols, fire and paramedic response, 911 emergency services, street and pothole repairs, parks, and homelessness support all cost more today. Simply promising "efficiency" is NOT enough to protect these essential services.

Measure P keeps funds local and provides a stable source of revenue for services residents depend on. It is not about making government bigger—it is about protecting essential services and avoiding more costly repairs in the future.

Accountability matters. So do safe neighborhoods, reliable emergency response, and well-maintained streets.

Let's protect what works. Vote YES on Measure P.
